Hi everyone! My name is Duriya Khan, and I'm honored to serve as the Editor-in-Chief of the UMBC Law Review. I'm a junior currently majoring in Political Science with a minor in Law & Justice and Social Welfare, and I'm passionate about local politics, with plans to pursue a career as a civil rights attorney. In my free time, I love junk journaling and beachcombing!

I am a freshman political science major and the senior editor of UMBC's Law Review, focused on constitutional and tax law. I look to continue a career in government, aiming to become a general counsel and policy advisor.

Hi everyone! My name is Sedat Sefik, and I'm excited to serve as a Senior Editor on the UMBC Law Review. I'm deeply interested in International and Humanitarian Law, with a growing focus on Economic Law and International Trade Policy, and I hope to pursue a career in public service with aspirations of serving in senior head-of-state–level leadership roles one day. In my free time, I enjoy exploring chemistry as a hobby subject!

My name is Evelyn Pearce and I'm serving as your associate editor.
I'm a History major as well as a German minor and a Law and Justice minor.
This is my last semester at UMBC and after my gap year I plan on going to law school.
